

Dietary Supplement Products Containing DMAA

DMAA has been getting a lot of attention lately, and although products containing DMAA are legal in the U.S., a scientific review is underway. As such, the HPRC has compiled a list of currently available commercial products that contain this ingredient. The list is accurate as of the time of compiling, although some manufacturers have already modified their products to exclude DMAA and others may do so in the future. The list also may not include all products available. Some retailers still have stock of products that were previously made with DMAA, and newer, non-DMAA versions may have the same product name. So it is important to read ingredient labels carefully before using any product, especially those promoted for bodybuilding and weight loss (and party pills).

In checking labels, you need to know that there are numerous terms/synonyms for DMAA. The most common ones are 1,3-dimethylamylamine; methylhexaneamine or MHA; dimethylpentylamine or DMP; 4-methylhexan-2-amine; Geranamine; and geranium oil, extract, or stems and leaves. However, other names are also used, so we have compiled a list of various terms that could appear on an ingredient label:

- 1,3-dimethylamylamine
- 1,3-dimethylpentylamine
- 2-amino-4-methylhexane
- 2-hexanamine,4-methyl-(9Cl)
- 4-methyl-2-hexanamine
- 4-methyl-2-hexylamine
- 4-methylhexan-2-amine (IUPAC)
- C7H17N (chemical formula)
- CAS 105-41-9
- dimethylamylamine (DMAA)
- dimethylpentylamine (DMP)
- DMAA
- Floradrene
- Forthan
- Forthane
- Fouramin
- Geranamine (Proviant™)
- GeranaX
- Geranium extract
- Geranium flower extract
- Geranium oil
- Geranium oil extract
- Geranium stems and leaves
- Metexaminum
- Methexaminum
- Methylhexanamine
- Methylhexaneamine (MHA)
- Pelargonium (various)
- Pentylamine
- synthetic geranium

⇒ HPRC periodically updates this list, so be sure to check back for newer versions.

† Party pills represent a different category of DMAA-containing products; they are not considered dietary supplements, as they are marketed solely for recreational use, so we are now listing them under a separate heading. The use of DMAA in party pills has led to its recent ban in New Zealand—effective April 9, 2012.

HPRC's partners at the Natural Medicines Comprehensive Database (NMCD) have also developed a list of dietary supplements that contain DMAA. This user-friendly database is available for both Warfighters and healthcare professionals who have a ".mil" email address through links on the HPRC website. Choose the appropriate version and follow the instructions to create an account. To view NMCD's list of products containing DMAA, log on, type "DMAA" in the keyword search box, and then click on the link with the NMCD logo that says "View 200 Products Containing: DIMETHYLAMYLAMINE." Note that NMCD has given all these products their lowest safety rating.
